Above the Weir, Golland. An out-of-the-way little village at the mouth of the Fowey stream. A point where it joins the Estuary of Hessenford River. Its shelter and idyllic simplicity make the old fashioned cottages with their thatched roofs and creepers make it a pleasant spot, away from the maddening crowd.

Dear L. Thank you for the effort and I'll certainly try to come on Sat. I hope you can manage it. Sorry I was out when you called. Was at home all the week end. Hope you are well. Hope to write more long. This is only a line - Two visitors yesterday. Love C.W.

The address was very good!
